

Kite

Just Like Vinyl

When the stars become her
I can be seen above it all
I was the songbird that over-sung
Un-discover, a world that walked away from you
It walked away from me
And it walked away from truth
Look forth to become
Whenever the book is shown to you
Look through the pages and you will see the truth
The queen needs water
So the slave is on his way
You flip it over another day another dollar earned
Multiply! Tie the lies
When all the world has died

On top of the highest mountain
Where I undermine everything
My heart is the transistor
And your mind is the cable that connects us to life
Never expect the givens
Always think of the thrift in things
Look into my heart and you will find
Reasons for all these things

What lies in her from everyday
And with your pain it all crashes down!
When you know, what you've trusted
When you hit the ground
There was a girl I knew
She was turned from everything
As I was turned away from you
So run away, or run to me

MULTIPLY!
