

Days Gone By

Bob Moses

The world that you control is breaking and you feel it all so cold around you The pieces that you hold are falling with your feeling of the world it found you Even if I kneel you worry that I turn around then steal the future
A fear that you know well So you just play your part and turn away from me. With all of these days gone by It's you and I who need to question
Why all of these things go by
And you nor I
have learned our lesson
With all of these days gone by It's you and I who
need to question
Why all of these things go by
And you nor I
have learned our lesson
The world behind your eyes
I could tell that you can almost feel your prize
The painting on your face
The smile that you would just soon erase If I would listen what you say and not just play my part and turn away from you
With all of these days gone by It's you and I who
need to question
Why all of these things go by
And you nor I
have learned our lesson
With all of these days gone by
It's you and I who
need to question
Why all of these things go by
And you nor I
have learned our lesson
With all of these days gone by
It's you and I who

need to question
Why all of these things go by
And you nor I
have learned our lesson
With all of these days gone by
It's you and I who
need to question
Why all of these things go by
And you nor I
have learned our lesson
With all of these days gone by
It's you and I who
need to question
Why all of these things go by
And you nor I
have learned our lesson
With all of these days gone by
It's you and I who
need to question
Why all of these things go by
And you nor I
have learned our lesson
