

The Yawning Grave

Lord Huron

I know the rain like the clouds know the sky
I speak to birds and tell them where to fly
I sing the songs that you hear on the breeze
I write the names of the rocks and the trees Though you've fooled all the rules I am coming for you
Darkness brings evil things, oh, the reckoning begins I tried to warn you when you were a child
I told you not to get lost in the wild
I sent omens and all kinds of signs
I taught you melodies, poems, and rhymes
Though you've fooled all the rules, I am coming for you
You can run but you can't escape
Darkness brings evil things, oh, the reckoning begins
You will open the yawning grave
