

Little Devotional

Taking Back Sunday

Well I'm blowing smoke out of your window
And you're slipping back into your dress
You know you were always such a lady
I've always been impressed But gentlemen
They don't ask questions
Just keep quiet
She'll pay attention
Gentlemen don't ask questions
We could pay attention-Chorus-
I said, "I'm gonna have myself in shambles
Before your folks are up and looking for some answers."
Said, "I'm gonna have myself in shambles
Before your folks are up and looking for some answers."
Well I pictured you in blue
But I have to say I'm more partial to the red
Deep, dark, and devastating
Leaving no question as to where you've been I calm the crowd by keeping quiet
Move like a shadow up to your mattress
Gentlemen don't ask questions
We could pay attention Do you think he'd be better?
('Cause we're down for competition)
Doing what I do best?
Do you think he'd be better?
(This could all be on purpose)
Doing what I do best? I said, "I'm gonna have myself in shambles
Before your folks are up and looking for some answers."
Said, "I'm gonna have myself in shambles
Before your folks are up and looking for some answers."
Do you think he'd be better
Doing what I do best?
Do you think he'd be better
Doing what I do best? Do you think he'd be better
('Cause we're down for competition)
Doing what I do best?
Do you think he'd be better
(This could all be on purpose)
Doing what I do best? I said, "I'm gonna have myself in shambles
Before your folks are up and looking for some answers."
Said, "I'm gonna have myself in shambles
Before your folks are up and looking for some answers." I said, "I'm gonna have myself in shambles
Before your folks are up and looking for some answers."

Said, "I'm gonna have myself in shambles
Before your folks are up and looking for some answers."

Lyrics provided by <https://www.songarea.com/>