

Goodbye

Slaughterhouse

I remember it like it just happened
I could've sworn it was a dream
But in reality it hit me like a nightmare
Or at least that's how it seemed
I just got a grip on our relationship
We was ironing things out, started picking up steam
And when we didn't need it is when it all got heated
And we both said some things that we probably didn't mean
Then God intervened, guess more was at stake
Thought we left nothing over, He put more on the plate
She came home from the doctor with news I've been wanting Says family was incoming, she's pregnant, twins coming
But that's gotta be a lie
She sighed, couldn't stop the tears coming from her eyes
That birth control she on, for them it's suicide
As long as it's still inside, two of them wouldn't survive
Hard turn from memorable to cynical
Picturing clothes for what would've been identical
Similar outfits, similar names
My deceased kids' ultrasound in a frame
So I'm deprived of my chance to be a better dad
Staring at my twins that I never had
I shed a tear, looking up in the sky
Even though y'all just got here, goodbye
Goodbye, goodbye, so long, farewell
But it's not the end of the chapter
Goodbye, goodbye, so long, farewell I'll see you again in the afterlife
My biological sperm donor, didn't wanna be a daddy
So he hopped in his Caddy and turned corners on us
Turned on us out the clear blue
His last memory of his son is seeing me through his rearview
I still love him yo, but I love his brother more
My uncle showed me love no one could know
Young and poor with a tougher road
To suffer hunger was nothing but Unc' would hold
Us down, help moms lift the motherload
I got grown and
I used to wonder what it would be like to speak to pops as a grown man
He provided that feeling, told me to take my career into my own hands
He was there when I had no fans
My cellphone rings, and after I answer
A voice says "Your uncle's been diagnosed with cancer"

Worst news in my life
 Him and chemo going 12 rounds with a disease and they both losing the fight
 I'm rushing up to Cedars-Sinai
 Praying for a miracle, I don't wanna see my idol die
 Before he did, the look in his eyes
 Said "Even though you just got here, goodbye" Goodbye, goodbye, so long, farewell But it's not the end of the chapter
 Goodbye, goodbye, so long, farewell
 I'll see you again in the afterlife I'll see you again in the afterlife
 Someday in heaven we will reunite
 The flesh disappears but the soul survives
 Till next time, my friend, farewell, goodbye I walked in your daughter's house, knowing that you gone
 But still looking out the corner of my eye, hoping you on the couch
 That call felt like I was beef that had got shot up
 Ironic, I was on tour with Tech N9ne and Slaughterhouse
 D tried to talk to me, Crystal rubbed my back, as they was pouring out
 I caught the next thing soaring out
 Now I'm in the air, in the midwest somewhere
 They said turbulence was severe, I don't know what they talking bout
 I ain't feel a bump, body numb, mind drifting
 I'm sniffing, asthma acting up, I'm whistling
 I'm wishing my mother's face looked so much different
 I'm kissing my son, my aunt pacing in the kitchen
 My vision blurry, still I saw your face clear
 What a loss, this time I did more than waste beer
 Michelle's strong, she held on, we got all the way there
 Then we walked in, she fell on the floor, this ain't fair
 You was the voice when I considered them thoughts that ain't clear
 Hey granny, I was fifth row at the Grammy's
 An award they ain't hand me, but I sat behind Will And right in front of Wayne, and got seen by the family
 I miss the early morning convos, believe me
 Regis on the TV, and the best baked ziti
 But you had an all white affair, grandpa's all fly
 Even though you been got there, goodbye Goodbye, goodbye, so long, farewell
 But it's not the end of the chapter
 Goodbye, goodbye, so long, farewell
 I'll see you again in the afterlife

Lyrics provided by <https://www.songarea.com/>