

Not That Type

Input

It's not the type of song that makes you want to think back / To all the memories of loss inside
your think tank

It's not the type of song designed for the long run / It's only made to last until the song's done

It's not the type of song for building your relationships / It's not a tool to tear apart where the sensation hits

Let it move into the realm of indifferences / Cross out the dissonance and focus where the wisdom is

It's not the type of song your friends will relate to / But they can all agree that it's a place you can escape to

Branch out and try to grasp the opportunity / To make the next few minutes exist with continuity

Live strong in the eve of ever-changing nights / Programmed to comprehend the feelings that the ladies like

Every minute has a chance to elaborate / Into something special designated for a Saturday

Pardon me for tapping into something delicate / But this is not the type of song that classifies as relevant

To anything that took a second chance to figure out / It's simply here for you to concentrate on something else

Let it slowly turn itself into your favorite track / But not the type of song that contradicts the latest trends

It's not the song that I would pray for you to love / But you'll understand if you have a radio with guts

It's not the type of song that makes you want to think back / To all the memories of loss inside
your think tank

It's not the type of song designed for the long run / It's only made to last until the song's done

It's not the type of song for building your relationships / It's not a tool to tear apart where the
sensation hits

Let it move into the realm of indifferences / Cross out the dissonance and focus where the
wisdom is

It's not the type of song diluted with intelligence / It's not make you think excessively outside you elements

This came to me within a fraction of a second / To satisfy the customer without asking the questions

It's not the type of music relative to noise / That interferes with conversations drowning out your voice

It isn't part of any exhausted compilation / Influenced by testosterone and self gratification

And don't expect this to offend your way of life / Only hold your expectations high enough to hear this right

And don't assume that this will offer a solution / To overcoming better undermining your confusion

It's as simple as the last lines repetition / It's as simple as the last lines repetition So don't eliminate its possibility to flourish / And don't anticipate the song to ever lose its purpose

It's not the type of song that makes you want to think back / To all the memories of loss inside
your think tank

It's not the type of song designed for the long run / It's only made to last until the song's done
It's not the type of song for building your relationships / It's not a tool to tear apart where the
sensation hits

Let it move into the realm of indifferences / Cross out the dissonance and focus where the
wisdom is

Lyrics provided by <https://www.songarea.com/>