

Castaway

Brett Eldredge

I tried to fly, but I ran out of sky
And I fell straight down into the ocean
Then I rode away back to shore and I stayed for a while
'til I got tired of being alone Why do I
Always try
To run away from you?
Please don't say
A castaway
Is what I was born to do
I guess I'll always be lost without you
If I got smart I'd trade my wings for your heart
And I'd promise to never chase the wind
I'll look up at the moon but all I'd see is you
And I'm reminded
I need you're love again Why do I
Always try
To run away from you?
Please don't say
A castaway
Is what I was born to do
I guess I'll always be lost without you And I'd be naive
To ever think
You're at your door waiting for me
Oh, oh, oh
Oh, oh, oh
So why do I
Always try
To run away from you?
Please don't say
A castaway
Is what I was born to do
I guess I'll always be lost without you

Lyrics provided by <https://www.songarea.com/>