

Your Heart Will Lead You Home

Kenny Loggins

Sunny days and starry nights lazy afternoons
You're counting castles in the clouds and humming little toons.
But somehow right before your eyes
the summer fades away, Everything is different and everything has changed
If you feel you lost
And on your own
And far from home
You're never alone you know
Just think of your friends
The ones who care
They all will be waiting there
With love to share
And your heart will lead you home
Funny how a photograph
Can take you back in time To places and embraces that you thought you left behind Trying to remind you that you're not the only one but no-one is an island when all is said and done
If you feel you lost
And on your own
And far from home
You're never alone you know
Just think of your friends
The ones who care
They all will be waiting there
With love to share
There'll come a day when you're losing your way
And you won't know where you belong
They say that home is where the heart is So follow your heart and know that you can't go wrong.
If you feel you lost
And on your own
And far from home
Just think of your friends
The ones who care
They all will be waiting there

With love to share
And your heart will lead you ...If you feel you lost
And far from home
The ones who care
With love to share
And your heart will lead you ... where you belong ...
I know your heart will lead you home.
