Swim

Stuart Davis

> The only reason that it's scary getting old Is people treat you like you're too big to hold And you still feel just like a kid
> You call my bluff when I pretend to be at peace
> You take the water that I finally release
> Close your mouth, open your arms
> That is why I reach for you so much I think I'm drowning until we touch
> Life is an ocean we fall in
> When you hold me I can swim
> In this hospital the beds are made of steel And metal instruments are all some people feel What you need is something soft against your skin

So you don't have to pretend to be at peace
I'll take the water that you finally release Close your mouth, open your arms

That is why you reach for me so much
You think you're drowning until we touch
Death is an ocean we fall in
I will hold you while you swim
