

No Tears

James Blunt

Don't I know it?
Nobody has to say
I've been lucky, guess I was born that way I thank my father, his absence has made me strong And I love my mother but she had troubles with God
No tears
for the life that you've led You've had angels in your head
Did you hear them singing in the end
All the things that you've seen
All the things that could have been Well I've been everything I want to be So, no tears,
no tears
for me.

Yeah, I've bathed in sunshine but cherished the fading light And I heard my heartbeat falter on a winter's night I loved a woman but she didn't hear my prayers
So Lord,
oh Lord,

I'm yours.
No tears
for the life that you've led
You've had angels in your head
Did you hear them singing in the end
All the things that you've seen
All the things that could have been Well I've been everything I want to be So, no tears,
no tears.

Cause someone somewhere's going home tonight
Trying to understand the sacrifice
So save your tears for those left behind
For the life that you've led
You've had angels in your head
Did you hear them singing in the end
All the things that you've seen
All the things that could have been Well I've been everything I want to be

So, no tears,
no tears
no tears for me.

Lyrics provided by <https://www.songarea.com/>