

Urban Angel

Natalie Walker

Snow falls on New York

And the lights all go out

All the music suddenly stops

Now there isn't a single sound

We are no longer rushing around

We stop to smell the air

Take a breath and close our eyes

For a moment if we dare

She pulls us in

And wraps us in her chill

She holds us close

And now we can be still

We're okay here

We'll stay here

For a little longer

We embrace this common ground

All a little lost

Somehow it fits

She holds part of all of us

Forever and content

No matter how many times I leave

I always hear her voice calling me

I could be a million miles away

But its here, I'll always have a place

Lyrics provided by <https://www.songarea.com/>